If all the folks are sleeping, And then, if both of you keep still, And all the room is shady, She'll float across the window-sill,

A bounie white moon lady. 'Across the sill, along the floor, You'll see her shining brightly Until she comes to mother's duor, And then she'll vanish lightly; But in the morning you will find,

If nothing happens, may be, She's left as something nice behind— A beautiful star-baby." We didn't just believe her then, For aunty's always chaffing,

The tales she tells to me and Len, Would make you die a laughing And when she went out pretty soon, Len said. "That's aunty humming Not any baby coming.

I thought my-if it was a fib, Aml yet I wasn't certain, So I kept quiet in the crib. I didn't mean to sleep a wink,

But, all without a warning,

I dropped right off-and, don't you think, I never waked till morning! Then there was conty by my bed, And when I climbed out and kissed her She laughed and said, "You sleepy head! You've got a little sister!

What made you shut your eyes so soon?

For down she came, that Lady Moon, Exactly as I told you. And truly it was not a joke,

For just the very time she spoke We heard the baby crying: The way we jumped and made a rush, For mother's room, that minute But aunty stopped us, crying, "Hush, Or else you shan't go in it

And so we had to tiptoe in, And keep us awful quiet, As if it was a mighty sin To make a bit of riot. But there was a baby, anyhow-The funniest little midgit! I just wish you could peep in now

And see her squirm and fidget. Len says he don't believe it's true (He isn't such a galy), The moon had anything to do With bringing as that buby But seems to me it's very clear,
